Video down the YouTube

A candidate in the Adelaide City Council elections has opened up a can of worms surrounding the legality of using video sharing sites such as YouTube for campaigning. David Campbell 24, says he was ordered by the State Electoral Office to remove a video he posted on the site because it did not carry an "authorised by" tag. Campbell said the video had been viewed by nearly 2000 people and that it was "staggering" his video had been singled out.

Computer coughs up fur ball

It may be a dangerously unpopular thing to say, but Geelong will win this weekend's AFL grand final against Port Adelaide according to the Swinburne computer. The computer uses a sports prediction software program developed
